May is Mental Health Outreach and Education Month

In an effort to eliminate the stigma that surrounds mental illness and raise mental health awareness, National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) and Mt. San Jacinto College will be showing the 90-minute film “Call Me Crazy”, starring Jennifer Hudson. A panel discussion will immediately follow the movie screening.

Call Me Crazy is comprised of five interconnected short films, each exploring a different facet or perspective on the effect of mental illness.

- “Lucy” follows the title character through her journey living with schizophrenia.
- “Grace” portrays the experience of a teenage girl whose mother lives with bipolar disorder.
- “Allison” is a humorous family drama of Lucy’s return from inpatient treatment and the effect it has on her sister.
- “Eddie” is a comedian whose story of living with depression is told through the eyes of his wife.
- Finally, “Maggie” follows a female veteran and the effect post traumatic stress disorder has on her life, from which she receives support from her lawyer, Lucy.

After the film, NAMI will host a discussion panel that will include an individual living successfully with a mental health diagnosis, 2 family members of individuals with a mental health diagnosis and a mental health professional representing Riverside County Department of Mental Health. The panel will answer any questions the public may have regarding mental health from each of their perspectives.

“I felt such an utter and all pervasive sense of hopelessness.”

-Melvin Martin, Marketing Executive and Member of the Oglala Lakota Nation

Real Men. Real Depression.

“When I was 19 years old and in the Army in Germany...I felt such an utter and all pervasive sense of hopelessness that it took all the energy I could generate just to get out of bed. Often I’d just lie there. I didn’t want to go through another day of the same thing. It was a sadness so deep that even now, 30 years later, it’s indescribable.”

Depression is a real disease that can be successfully treated.

May is National Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month

FAST FACTS

- Nearly 3 in 10 girls in the U.S. will get pregnant at least once by age 20.
- 1 in 6 girls in the U.S. will be a teen mom.
- The U.S. has the highest rate of teen pregnancy in the entire developed world.
- Babies born to teens are more likely to grow up poor, have health problems, be abused and neglected, fail in school and eventually become teen parents themselves.
- Less than half of teen moms graduate from high school.
- 8 out of 10 fathers don't marry the teen mothers of their babies.

StayTeen.org FAQs

11. Won't having a baby make my relationship better or make my boyfriend stay with me forever?

Having a baby often leads to a lot of problems in a relationship—it usually won't strengthen a relationship and doesn't necessarily lead to marriage. In fact, 8 out of 10 fathers never marry the teen mothers of their babies. Raising a child is hard. Raising a child alone is even harder. Being a teenager is a great time for growing up, getting an education, meeting new people, and having fun—not pregnancy and parenthood.

There are video stories and other educational resources for families. One of our favorites is the comic book below:

Darkness Calls (Healthy Aboriginal Network)

This comic book is of a teenager, Kyle, who faces social problems and constant criticism from authority figures at school. He finds himself too overwhelmed one day at school and considers taking his own life, but his grandfather gives him hope with a traditional story--a story of the struggle between good and evil over the spirits of youth.
